

Greg Rogers Public Policy Manager, Nuro

@AVGregR

Greg Rogers is the Public Policy Manager at Nuro, an autonomous vehicle company dedicated to bettering everyday life through robotics. In this role, Greg collaborates with stakeholders to advance policies that will enable the safe, equitable, and sustainable deployment of AV technology.

Greg is a co-founder and co-host of The Mobility Podcast, which explores how better policies and emerging technologies can improve transportation outcomes for everyone.

Before joining Nuro, Greg was the Director of Government Affairs and Mobility Innovation at Securing America's Future Energy (SAFE). Prior to that, he was a Senior Policy Analyst at the Eno Center for Transportation and the Assistant Editor of Transportation Weekly.

Greg has worked on both sides of the aisle in the House of Representatives, advocated for a wide range of clients on the Hill, and guided POLITICO Pro's business expansion into federal and state governments.

Greg holds a B.A. in Political Economy from the University of California at Berkeley and studied Political Science at the University of Copenhagen, Denmark.
