

Chris Berg

Director of Sustainability, Virginia Department of Transportation

Chris Berg is the Director of the Virginia Department of Transportation's (VDOT) newly established Office of Transportation Sustainability. Chris is supporting VDOT's efforts to lower emissions, increase resilience to flooding and other hazards, and strengthen land stewardship across the transportation system. Chris recently led the development of VDOT's first Electric Vehicle Charging Infrastructure Deployment Plan, providing Virginia with access to over $32M in federal funding to install charging stations across the Commonwealth. Chris holds Master's degrees in Environmental Studies and Public Administration, and previously worked with the Army National Guard on renewable energy and energy efficiency initiatives. When not working for a more sustainable future, Chris can be found hiking and kayaking throughout Virginia.
